DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is responsive to communications: Amendment filed 05/11/2007.
2. Claims 1-8, 11-18, 21-25 and 28-29 are pending in the case. Claims 1 and 11 are independent claims.
3. The rejections of all claims under §103 are withdrawn in view of Applicant's amendment.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-8, and 11-18, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kohl et al. (US 20020091930A1, 7/11/2002), and further in view of Applicant's Admitted Prior Art, and further in view of Doty, Jr. (US006795863B1, 9/21/2004) hereinafter Doty.

Regarding independent claim(s) 1 and 11, Kohl teaches installing a counter on to the device (para. 36). Kohl teaches that the content has been played, or presented (para. 37). Inherently, there must have been a player as this necessary to play content. Kohl teaches setting the counter to a specific value, 5, (para. 37), and using it to keep track of the allowable amount of plays (para. 37), though does not explicitly state that it is decrementing the counter. However, since the counter starts at the maximum allowed value, and is a counter recording the number of allowable plays, inherently, the counter must be decremented.

Kohl does not explicitly disclose the counter and content are on removable media. However, Applicant admits that removable media was a popular way get content on devices (p. 1). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to use removable media as it was popular to use at the time of the invention and would have increased user acceptance. Inherently, then the counter must have been searched for and installed.

Kohl does not explicitly teach a handheld device, but rather a more general computer. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to carry out the steps in the order claimed as it has been held the making a device portable is prima facie obvious in the absence of new or unexpected results, In re Lindberg, 194 F.2d 732, 93 USPQ 23 (CCPA 1952).

Kohl does not explicitly disclose searching for and installing a content player in response to detection of the absence of a content player. Doty teaches searching within a device a content player (plug-in) enabled to play data (col. 7, ll. 8-9). Doty teaches detecting the absence of a player (col. 7, line 12). Doty teaches installing a content player in response to the detecting (col. 7, ll. 12-14). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to combine Doty, Applicant's Admitted Prior Art, and Kohl, because it would have made the process effortless (Doty, col. 7, line 7) which would have been desirable for Kohl despite the different fields. It has also been held that a technique that has been used to improve one device and that a person of ordinary skill would recognize as improving a similar device in the same way (making Kohl more effortless), is obvious unless its actual application is beyond the person's skill. See KSR International Co. v. Teleflex Inc., 127 S. Ct. at 1731, 82 USPQ2d at 1389.

Regarding dependent claim(s) 2 and 12, Kohl teaches multimedia (para. 25)

Regarding dependent claim(s) 3 and 13, Kohl teaches audio files (para. 25).

Regarding dependent claim(s) 4 and 14, Kohl teaches videos, which comprise at least one graphical image (para. 25).

Regarding dependent claim(s) 5-8 and 15-18, as the intended use in different media would not result in a manipulative difference the prior art and the claimed invention(s); the claims are similarly rejected as claims 8 and 13 above. See, e.g., In re Otto, 312 F.2d 937, 938, 136 USPQ 458, 459 (CCPA 1963) and In re Sinex, 309 F.2d 488, 492, 135 USPQ 302, 305 (CCPA 1962).

6. Claims 21-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kohl, Applicant's Admitted Prior Art, and Doty as applied to claims 1 and 11 above, and further in view of "Benefits of Web Site Copyright Registration" by Richard Keyt.

Regarding dependent claim(s) 21 and 23, Kohl and Doty do not explicitly teach all types of media the invention extends to. Keyt teaches that web pages are content that must be protected against illegal use (whole document). Web pages inherently have link to web sites. It would have been obvious to extend Kohl's protection of content to web pages as web pages need to be protected for financial reasons (Keyt, para. 1).

Regarding dependent claim(s) 22 and 24, Kohl and Doty do not explicitly teach all types of media the invention extends to. Keyt teaches that web pages are content that must be protected against illegal use (whole document). Web pages inherently have link to web sites that are opened in a web browser when clicked. It would have been obvious to extend Kohl's protection of content to web pages as web pages need to be protected for financial reasons (Keyt, para. 1).

7. Claim 25 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kohl, Doty and Applicant's Admitted Prior Art as applied to claims 1 and 11 above, and further in view of Headings et al. (US 20020144283A1).

Regarding dependent claim(s) 25, Kohl teaches that when counter expires, the license expires. Kohl and Doty do not explicitly disclose deleting the data when the license expires. Headings teaches deleting content when the license expires (para. 28). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to delete the content in order to comply with various copyrights and distribution rules (Headings, para. 3). Additional motivation is found in the nature of the problem to be solved, which is protecting copyrighted content. Protection of content cannot be any more effective then permanently removing a would-be infringer's possession of the content.

8. Claims 28 and 29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kohl, Doty and Applicant's Admitted Prior Art as applied to claims 1 and 11 above, and further in view of Colvin et al. (US 2001/0034712 A1, 10/25/2001).

Regarding dependent claim(s) 28 29, Kohl and Doty do not explicitly disclose storing or uploading. Colvin discloses storing the information representing user interaction and uploading it to the server (p. 111). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to combine Colvin with Kohl and Doty to provide "quality assurance capabilities" (para. 111).

Response to Arguments

9. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1 and 11 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

10. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

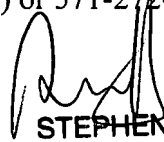

11. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
